

THE ORPHAN'S LAMENT

OR

I'M STANDING BY YOUR GRAVE MOTHER

WRITTEN AND AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBED TO HER FRIEND
HARRIET J. BASSETT
BY
SARAH T. BOLTON
Music by
JOSEPH P. WEBSTER.

PIANO.  GUITAR.

BOSTON Published by OLIVER DITSON 115 Washington St

J. E. SGOULD. D. A. TRUAX. H. D. HEWITT. S. T. GORDON.
Boston. Cincinnati. N. Orleans. N. York.

Entered according to act of Congress of 1823 by O. Ditson in the Clerk's Office of the 2nd Court of Mass.

Printed at the City

THE ORPHAN'S LAMENT.

Words by Sarah T. Bolton.

J. P. Webster.

Andantino.

WITH MUCH FEELING.

I'm

standing by your grave... mother, The winds are sobbing

wild, And the win... try stars look dim... ly down, Up.

Copyright 1855 by O. Ditson &

2079

Copyright 1863 by Mrs. J. P. Webster.

... on your or-phan child, Dark clouds are wreathed a-long the sky. In many a heavy fold... And the moonlight on the frosty grass, Gleams very pale and cold, And the moonlight on the frosty grass. Gleams very pale and cold.

pp p pp

3^d.v. I had a gen - tle sis - - - ter then, She is not with me now. For the

2^d.v. We had a hap - py home mother Up - on the mountain side, When the gloomy shad - - ow of the grave Lies on her ba - - by brow, And summer birds sang all day long, Be - fore dear fa - ther died, Then stran - gers meet a - round the fire, Up - on the - - old hearth stone, Oh moth - er dear, your cheek grew pale and pa - ler ev - 'ry day Un -

mother in the cold wide world, I'm all a - lone, a - - lone, Oh

- - til at last the angels came, And bore you too a - - way, Un -

Mo - ther, in the cold wide world I'm all a - lone a - lone.
 - - - til at last the an - gels came and bore you too a - way.

4.

I'm standing by your grave mother,
 No human form is near;
 And the fitful moaning of the wind,
 Is all the sound I hear;
 I tremble when the old trees toss
 Their shadows to and fro,
 But I'll shut my eyes, and say my prayers
 You taught me long ago.

5.

The morning sun looked gently down
 O'er frozen wold and wild,
 And kissed the little pallid face
 Of that poor orphan child;
 She felt no more the stinging cold,
 Nor heard the tempest rave,
 The snow wreath was her winding sheet
 Upon her mother's grave.